THANKSGIVING DAY GOLF.

THE WINTER TOURNEY OF THE LAKEWOOD CLUB BEGINS.

Forty-three Players Finish in the Prelimisary Rounds Toler Wins the Gold Medal Ideal Weather and Greens-Represents Golf for the winter of 1896-97 began with a boom at Lakewood yesterday, where the Lakewood Golf Club held an amateur tournament open to all players affiliated with the United states Golf Association. Fifty-one were listed to start and forty-three handed in full cards. The clubs represented included the Sadahqueda of Utics, Otsego, Washington, Lenox, and the country Club of Philadelphia, as well as the well-known clubs near New York. The golfers tested their skill at both medal and match play.

and started off the three-day tournament with much enjoyment. Every condition favored the players. There was not a trace of the fog that bothered townsmen, the weather was summerlike, and Norton had the links as next as the lawn of a country villa. Still, with only few exceptions, the scoring at medal play was only ordinary. The best card was five behind the record for the course. held at eighty-seven by Jasper Lynch, and 110 enabled a man to qualify in the first sixteen. Four of the holes have been lengthened since last season, making the distances as follows: 1. 165; 2, 235; 3, 177; 4, 139; 5, 407; 6, 425; 7,

287; 8, 408; 9, 338. Total length, 2,581 yards, What wind there was blew against the players on the short holes. Play began at 9 o'clock with a preliminary eighteen-hole medal round. The sixteen who made the best scores qualified for the Laurel House Cup at match play, and the losers met again in a consolation cup match. After the finals for the cups there will be a handleap to wind up the tournament in a blaze of golfing glory

Stoddart made the best score on the first round, 44. A number made 45. F. Bohlen, the noted Philadelphia cricketer, made the first four holes in 14, aided by a two on the 130-yard hole. He afterward fell off in his game. J. W. Biddle, one of Boblen's clubmates, holds his hands far apart in driving, exactly as though the shaft was a cricket but yet hedrives a long ball. In spite of a nine, he made the second round in 4ti.

Toler played the prettiest golf and won the gold medal by a well earned ninety-two. A phenomenally long brassey shot that enabled him to make the last hole in six placed him in the lead. Lynch was ninety-three, and would have beaten forty-six on his second round but for being bunkered at the fifth hole, costing him an eight. Bowers, who played with Toler, also made ninety-three. There was one poor hole on his card, an eight caused by a trapped ball on the second shot. The cards follow:

CROWDS AT THE CATTLE SHOW

Judge Chamberlain Gets an Involuntary Ride on the Back of a Berkshire Boar, For the first time during the week there was what might be called a crowd at the Live Stock Show in the Garden vesterday, and both afternoon and evening the pens around the arena were surrounded by spectators. The mane children present enjoyed themselves by teasing the cattle, poking the pigs, and caressing the ponies. While in some respects the show lacks the variety of last year's exhibition, it is unusually strong in prize cattle, sheep, and pigs. The cattle on hand is valued at $90,000, the sheep at $8,000, and the swine at $2,000, making a total of $100.000.

Owing to the interference of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on Wednesday evening the sheep driving contest, which was to have taken place yesterday afternoon, was dispensed with and a sheep shearing contest substituted. Another event not on the official programme occurred during the afternoon while the swine paraded around the ring. It caused no end of amusement for the spectators, even if it did disturb the serenity of one of the judges. While Gladwin the huge Berkshire boar which was so soundly thrashed by his spause Lande on Wednesday afternoon, was being led around the ring he caught sight of another boar on the other side of the arena. Breaking away from his keeper, he dashed across the Garden with grunts that drowned the musle of the band. The judges and officials who happened to be in Gladwin's path sought safety in flight, and and except Charley Chamberiain succeeded. The latter, who was making for the rrena fence at a John R. Gentry gait, was caught between the legs by Gladwin, who rode him on his back for thirty feet and then dumped him on the soft earth floor of the arena. serenity of one of the Judges. arena.

Outside of the judging and parading of prize catile, which was kept up almost continuously during the afternoon and evening, the sheepshearing contest attracted the most attention. Six experts took part in the competition for the three prizes, and the judges considered rapidity, neatness of work, and care of fleece.

Each man had a style that was entirely his own in the method of handling the submissive victims. After about half an hour's work first prize was awarded to H. Gibson of Deleware, Can., second prize to Dan Taylor of Milbrook, N. Y., and third prize to Her Broderick of Rockwood Hall, Tarrytown, N. Y.

During the afternoon the managers of the show announced that they had decided to reduce the price of admission in the evenings for the remainder of the week from $1 to 50 cents. The judges worked hard all day, and the result was that the majority of the awards were finished early in the evening.

In the cattle classes, Goottwin & Judy of West Lebanon, Ind., and S. R. Pierce of Creston, Ill., won ail of the prizes for the Aberdeen-Angus breed. In the Ayrshire class, the chief awards lell to William Lindsay & Son of Elizabeth, N. J.; B. Luther Shimer of Bethlehem, Pa.; J. O. Majie & Sons of Elizabeth, N. J., and E. H. and C. S. Harney of Milford, N. Y.

The breeders of shorthorns who won ribbons, glory, and cash were J. (G. Robbins & Sons of Horace, Ind., and Kent and Watson of Jamestown, N. Y. In the Gurney classes, J. B. Duke of Somerville, N. J.; the Westport Farms of Westport, N. Y. A. J. Cassatt of Bernyin, Pa., and William Lindsay & Son won a majority of the prizes.

In the Sheland pony classes for stallions and and William Lindsay & Son won a majority of the prizes.

In the Shetland pony classes for stallions and mares, Thomas L. Watt and his son, Thomas L. Watt, Jr., captured all the prizes.

The prizes for Shropshire shrep were won by G. Howard Davison of Milbrook, N. Y.; John Campbell of Woodville, Ont., and S. H. Todd & Sons of Wakeman, Ohlo.

Any number of breeds of swine were also judged. In the Poland-China class the principal winners were R. F. Seeley of Weterlee, Seneca county, N. Y., and A. L. Hutchings, North Chile, N. Y. In the small Yorkshire classes Warren Henstis & Son of Belmont, Mass. Fred B. Stewart of New York, and William Lindsay & Son were the leading prize takers.

Murle's Sport Wins the All-Aged Stakes for Setters.

NEWTON, N. C., Nov. 26,-The All-Aged Stakes for setters was continued to-day, with five dogs carried into the second series. Tony Boy ran with Harold Skimpole, Marle's Sport with Sam T., and Harwick alone. A late start was made on account of rain, the first brace being put down near 10 o'clock. Tony Boy and Harold Skimpole ran an interesting trial with honors about even. Tony, however, received a better place in the award, owing to his record in the first series of trials. Marie's Sport and Sam T. ran next, with all the advantage in Sport's favor. Harwick then ran his bye with a dog selected by the judges, but he did not sustain himself at the end of the hour's trial. The fol-lowing awards were made: Marie Sport, owned by H. H. Ledletter, Farming-gren, Mo. first, Jany Boy, evened by Norvin J. arris, Louisville, second Harold skingole, owned by H. Beazell, Homestead, Pa., third.

University of Pennsylvania Rusners Out.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.-The annual fivemile cross-country team race between Cornell Cornell won last year and Pennsylvania the year before, so that to-day's race was the deciding one. Cornell was represented by Davison. Torrance, Schryver, and Barrett, while Pennsylvania relied on Orton, Grant, Mechling, and Coates. The race was decided by points, the first man in counting eight, and so on down to one point for the last man. The start was made at 1:36 between the football goal posts at Franklin field, and the men ran out through Franklin field, and the men ran out through the country and back.

Orton came in first at 2:07, with Grant and Torrance following at half-minute intervals. Coates came longing in alone at 2:09. Half a minute later Mechling came down the field, with Harrett following close. Mechling maintained his lead and finished ten yards shead of the Cornell man. Davison and Schryver followed in order, half a minute later. Pennsylvania scored 14 points and Cornell 12, and the red and blue takes the third and deciding race.

CROWDS AT THE RESCH SHOW

Critical Brooklynites Flock to the Old Thirteenth Regiment Armory. Steamed biscuit failed to dampen canine fervency in the old Thirteenth Regiment armory, Brooklyn, yesterday. The thanksgiving was general, and the more enthusiastic, whose larynxes had become a wee bit raspy, made up for their inability to "yap" by wagging their

The judging had been completed and the best of good humor prevailed. Throughout the benches visitors were greeted with a welcome as hearty as if the "lay out" had been turkey and chestnut stuffing.

From noon until it was time for the curfew bell to sound Brooklyn streamed into the main hall. It was aroused to the fact that future winners at New York had been unearthed, and when it saw the gathering it was satisfied that New York must suffer if its blue ribbons did not flutter under the same ensign. The Metropoiltan Kennel Club spirits, which had been decidedly droopy the two previous days, revived in a "hey presto!" manner.

The terriers had clearly made up their mind to make a week of it and stuck to their programme. Anything in the shape of fur-a lady's mantle or cloak, the slightest flutter of a hurried visitor-was sufficient to urge the entire assemblage of fox terriers, Irish terriers, Scotch terriers, Dandie Dimonts, Bedlingtons, and ther partners opposite to a frenzy of "guying." It was bad taste, because the crowds that thronged the aisles included "big wirs" from Westbury, Hempstead, and this city. Yet the irrepressible rank and file of terriers waived all decorum and gave the Mayor of Brosklyn the laugh with the same deviltry with which they greeted the, pamins who had squeezed through the keybeles and the chinks in the walls. Encouraged by yesterday's receipts, the management has determined to continue their venture best year. Prosklyn, the Metropolitan Kennel Club contends, has onesed its arms to dogs, and for this reason nothing will prevent the organization from swooping down on the City of thurches again.

During the afternion and evening the crowds were attracted by the wonderful performance of Magnus Schulle's troupe of Great Danes, whose training and trickiness show greater acumen than that of the animals handled by William Patker some years ago. The show closes tenlight at 10 o'clock, and the Great Danes will be one of the attractions in the afternoon and evening. Danes will be one of t atternoon and evening.
